MRS. KEYS SUES COOK BREWING CO.

Alleges Cook Brewing Co.'s Agent Sold Beer to Her Husband and the McCrackens on Sunday.

IS SAID TO HAVE GOOD CASE.

Mrs. Emma Keys, widow of the late Jesse Keys, who was stabbed to death by the McCrackens brothers on the Ohio river a few Sundays ago, was in town Monday and employed Attorney E. C. Vance to file a suit against the Cook Brewing Co., of Evansville, Ind., for sale of beer to her husband and the McCrackens, which Keys lost in the drunken debauch in which Keys lost his life. The suit will be filed in a day or two at Covington, where it is alleged the agent of the Cook Co. sold the beer to the names above in a case. Mrs. Keys will ask for $10,000 for herself and for $10,000 each for her three children.

We understand that Mrs. Keys has a good cause of action against this company. It is said that the fact that the product was sold in violation of law (on Sunday) clinches any doubt about her chances to recover damages, but, of course, the suit is likely to be vigorously resisted. —Hancock Clarion.

USE OF CONFETTI

Causes Several Encounters at the Carnival.

There were several encounters at the carnival last night as a result of the use of confetti. Very little confetti is thrown this year. The style now is to stuff it down one's throat by force. This was tried on a stranger last night and the result was that a young man had his front teeth loosened for being too gay. The Wooden of the World, under whose auspices the carnival is being given, endeavored last night to stop the methods used by the gay carnival attendees, but with little success. —Owensboro Messenger.

THE NEW M. H. AND E. RAILROAD

Has Reached and Passed Hartford
...Work is Progressing
Splendify

GREEN RIVER BRIDGE STEEL.

The new M. H. & E. railroad reached Hartford promptly on time, as announced in last week's Herald, and numbers of our citizens stepped over to the track to view the work, says the Hartford Herald. The track layer, although simple co-struction, is a wonder in the way of laying rails with exactness and dispatch. The big crew of darkies carry the work along at all speed.

The new depot site is one of the prettiest in this part of the state. The elevated grounds are level and commanding. A splendid perspective is had looking northeast, where there is a straight stretch of track for half a mile, affording a fine and unobstructed view of an approaching train. The depot — understand, will be of modern construction, provided with every convenience. The location is only about two squares from the Ohio county courthouse.

The track-layer and work crew had yesterday reached and crossed Middie Creek bridge, which is about two miles south of Hartford. They are progressing with their usual speed and will soon reach Centertown. From there on to Smallhouse on Green river, will require only a short while. Work on the large steel bridge to span Green river at that point is progressing well. Track has been completed from Moonman, about three miles on the other side of Smallhouse to Green river at the latter point. It will only be a few months until trains are making schedule time over the new Madisonville, Hartford and Eastern railroad.

The track-layer and work crew had

Not since the people played hop-skips and jumprope were little folks have they had so much fun as they did at the start carnival given in this city by the Epworth League, Thursday and Friday nights. All the members and many of their friends buckled their energies together and made the affair a giant occasion of mirth. THOROUGH ORGANIZATION

The Only Safe Plan to Secure Good Prices For This Year's Crop of Tobacco.

AN UNUSUAL BIG CROP.

S. B. Robertson, of Calhoun, state secretary of the A. S. of E., was in the city on Thursday, says the Owensboro Messenger, on his way to Louisville where the state board was called to meet in connection with the tobacco situation in the Burley region. Mr. Robertson admits that there is an unusual crop of tobacco this year not only here but in other districts and he says he believes the only safety is in thorough organization for the holding of any surplus that may accumulate as the result of the present heavy crop. If organization does not save the farmers from the natural results of a big bumper crop he says he expects to see growers going through the streets of the city, as often before, begging for bids on their tobacco.

The News recommends the Epworth League entertainments to Breckenridge and all people seeking first class amusement.

Every Sunday at 6:45 o'clock the League holds devotional meetings in the Methodist church and an invitation is extended to visitors and friends to attend.

STATE UNIVERSITY

Honors Wallace Babbage With a Good Position For the Coming School Term.

Wallace Babbage, formerly of this city, has accepted a position as first assistant in the department of mathematics at the Kentucky State University.

Mr. Babbage was assistant superintendent at the Mt. Sterling High School, and it was through his excellent work there that he has secured his good position. He will be at home this week for a vacation with his family and friends. —Mrs. V. G. Babbage.

AN OLD TIMER

Makes a Visit to His Old Home and Friends.

Rev. S. Bramlette, of Columbus, Kansas, who has been visiting his brother, Jas. K. Bramlette, at Irvington, for several weeks, returned home Monday. He says he had a delightful visit to his old home and county after a lapse of over 40 years. He was born near Bewleyville, in 1831. He married a Miss Gannaway, who attended Mrs. R. G. Gardner's school at Hardinsburg before the war. Mrs. Bramlette has been dead eleven years. He is now living with one of his sons at Columbus, Kansas. Rev. Bramlette is 78 years old, and a fine type of the old Kentucky character before the war. He chats pleasantly of the old times; has a splendid memory, and relates many reminiscences of the early days, and the men and women of that day and time. Although he has been away from his old Kentucky home for many years, he loves the old State yet.

One farmer remarked Saturday morning that he was more than pleased with the present outlook for corn. There was some trouble in the opening of the season on account of corn which did not come through, as the weather had been cold and wet; but for the most part, all corn fields in this locality now present a most promising appearance.

FARMERS SIGNING UP.

Two Tobacco Associations Have

Canvassers In Field And Are

Well pleased.

The Green River Tobacco association has about eight agents going through the county securing pledges for the pool of this fall. All of the agents have met with great success and claim that they will have more pledges signed this year than they received last year. One representative of the Green River association worked on the Calhoun road Friday and signed all of the farmers on that road with the exception of three.

The home-worship people are also circulating the pledges and are receiving great encouragement, their representatives securing numerous signers for their pooling pledges. —Owensboro Inquirer.

Mrs. R. S. Skillman Dead.

Mrs. Skillman, wife of Mr. R. S. Skillman, of Stephensburg, died at her home Tuesday at 4 a. m., after a long illness. Mrs. Skillman was a lovely Christian character, and her life went out like a dream. Services were held in the Baptist church, conducted by the Revs. Winchell and Roberts. Her remains were taken to Hardinsburg for interment in the old family burying ground today. A more extended notice of her death next week.

At Custer there will be several other speakers, and the gathering there will be the "Rally Day" for our county. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to be in attendance to hear local taxation, the county high school, the new law and other educational questions discussed.

ENGLISH SOLDIER SUCCESSFUL SUITOR

Bride and Groom Corresponded Before They Met.

Not knowing each other, but writing frequently week after week, Miss Orra Chapin and Mr. Joseph Gordy were finally brought together by fate and made their paper acquaintance one of actual love and courtship.

Mr. Gordy came here last week from Spokane, Wash., to meet Miss Chapin. They were together but a few days until they decided to go to Louisville and be united in marriage. They were married Tuesday evening at six o'clock in the Baptist parsonage at Fourth and Oak, by the Rev. W. W. Landrum.

The bride is a well known young woman of this city, and the groom is an English soldier, it is said, and has lived in America but a short while. He and his bride will reside at Spokane, Wash.

MRS. STANDIFORD

Is Pleased With Patronage From the Readers of The Breck- enridge News.

Mrs. Ethel Standiford has been highly pleased with the number of people from Breckenridge county who have visited her studio during the last three weeks. Through the columns of the News she has extended an invitation to all persons who are interested in photography to visit her studio, and to have a portrait taken.

Her work is most artistic and gives perfect satisfaction. Any one wanting to have pictures taken will be well repaid by visiting Mrs. Standiford.

ALLEN-TAUL.

Young People Marry at the Methodist Parsonage in This City.

Miss Cornelie Allen and Mr. Sidney Taul were married in the parlors of the Methodist parsonage Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. B. M. Currie in the presence of a large number of friends. The News wishes the young couple much happiness.

Harvest Hands Scarce.

The farmers say that laborers are scarce for the wheat harvest, and they fear they will be unable to employ a number sufficient to save the crop. The laborers in the tobacco factories are looking toward the wheat fields, and there will probably be an exodus from the city for the farm for the busy crop season. —Owensboro Inquirer.

Big Burley Tobacco Pool.

Winchester, Ky., June 12.—The Burley Tobacco Society finished its labors this morning and the members left for home. The executive committee is here giving the finishing touches to the pledge for pooling the crop of 1909. A vigorous campaign will be instituted and the members of the board feel sanguine that a larger per cent than ever before will be pooled.

Evans and families, all of whom will go to New Mexico to locate. Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Chambers are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Taber, and they will all locate together in the Southwest. YOUR BACKACHE WILL YIELD

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rockland, Maine.—"I was troubled for a long time with pains in my back and side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was encouraged, and a doctor thought I should never get well. I read a testimonial about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and thought it would take care of me. After taking three bottles I was cured, and never felt so well in all my life. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my friends."—Mrs. WILL YOUNG, 6 Columbia Avenue, Rockland, Me.

Dear Lydia E. Pinkham: I have trouble with my back, and I am weak and fatigued.

Take care that your sauces are delicately flavored. The thickest sauce-pans should be used for the operation, and only wooden spoons should be used for stirring. Remember also that your saucepan must be exquisitely clean and fresh if you would have your sauce a success. Let the fire be clear and not too fierce. One of the commonest faults to be found with our sauce is that it is too thick and too sweet. The average cook rarely soars above "sweet melted butter." More often than not boiled and steamed sweets are served without sauce of any sort. A very enjoyable dish to such as possess the necessary good digestion is roast pork, but roast pork should be eaten at its best, should be accompanied by a delicate sauce. To prepare this sauce, pare, core and quarter one pound of apples and throw them into cold water to preserve their whiteness. Put them into a saucepan with half a cup of water and a few cloves. Boil them up, add one tablespoonful of sugar and half a tablespoonful of butter. This sauce also forms a welcome addition to roast goose and duck.

Pistachio Sauce.—Throw two ounces of pistachio nuts into boiling water and when they are soft, remove them shell them. Next pound them till smooth. Mix in a basin half an ounce of cornstarch with a little cold water; then stir into the pounded nuts and allow them to boil, stirring all the time; then add one tablespoonful of sugar, one tablespoonful of cream, a few drops of vanilla extract. Strain the sauce, and it is ready. This sauce looks particularly attractive with a chocolate pudding, the green sauce making a pretty contrast to the brown of the pudding. If liked, milk may be used instead of cream, and the wine may be omitted, but add instead a little lemon juice and a little more water.

To use up the leftover dinner, I have removed the bones and flaked the meat.

Mr. J. L. Ladd, of Lynn, Mass., invited all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge.

ORIGINAL RECIPES.

Gleaned by One Who is a Gastronomic Adept.

To serve chicken livers en brochette allow one liver and six pieces of thinly sliced bacon for each person. Cut the livers in six pieces and string them alternately with the bacon on skewers. Stand the skewers upright through the rack of the dripping pan and bake in a hot oven until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve on a bed of cress.

To use up the leftover dinner, I have removed the bones and flaked the meat. Mix in a basin half a cup of cold boiled potatoes, chopped moderately fine and warm the hash in bacon fat or butter, seasoning with butter, salt and pepper. It is a good idea to brown the hash on the bottom and then fold it like an omelet.

Small skewers in rings with heads and tails together, dipped in milk and flour and fried in fat make an attractive fish course. Garnish the plate on which they are served with cress and slices of lemon that have been dipped in minced parsley. If they are not to be served at once, cover them around a mound of potato or make a potato border and serve the fish rings in a mound. The smelts may be skewered with a toothpick, and the skewer may be removed after the fish is cooked, as the ring will usually keep its shape.

Mr. J. L. Ladd, of Lynn, Mass., has a dish which he invented when he lived in bachelor quarters. He sprinkles two small slices of halibut with salt and pepper and bakes them in a gas oven until they are brown. Then he puts them on a piping hot platter and turns a Welsh rabbit over them. The men of his dormitory never eat the mixture, if the women folk do so eat.

A baked ham came to the table the other day with a lemon pig surmounting the top. The young housewife who likes things "different" had used the pointed end for the head, had raised triangular pieces of ham at the sides for the ears and stuck in cloves for eyes. The legs and tail were toothpicks. This is a traditional garnishment for pork.

The stuffed eggs served as a fish course at a luncheon last week had been cut in two, the yolks removed, a slice cut from each end of the whites so that the yolks could be removed and the two small ends had been put together with the open end at the top. This was heated high with a savory mixture of the yolk rubbed smooth with melted butter, salt, pepper, paprika and saffron. The eggs were served on wafers, leaves and were garnished with Spanish red pepper dice and olive strips.

ATTRACTIVE SAUCES.

The Average Cook Is Not Clever at Their Construction.

Sauces and soups are the fine arts of cookery, and the person who undertakes them must understand tastes and flavors and must possess trained patience. Each sauce should be adjusted to the meat, fish or vegetables with which it is to be served. A rounding tablespoonful of butter and a rounding tablespoonful of flour will thicken half a pint of liquid.

Take care that your sauces are delicately flavored. The thickest sauce-pans should be used for the operation, and only wooden spoons should be used for stirring. Remember also that your saucepan must be exquisitely clean and fresh if you would have your sauce a success. Let the fire be clear

JUST IN TIME.

Some Cloverport People May Wait Till It's Too Late.

Don't wait until too late. Be sure to be in time. Just in time with kidneyills Means curing the back Before backache becomes chronic; Before serious urinary troubles set in. Doan's Kidney Pills will do this. Here is Cloverport testimony to prove it.

William Johnson, Cloverport, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills in my case proved to be a very reliable remedy and I have no hesitation in recommending them. For six years my kidneys were disordered and the secretions were too frequent in passage and when allowed to stand contained a sediment. My back ached severely, particularly at night and in the morning I was so lame and sore that I could scarcely get around. Whenever I contracted the slight cold, it settled in my kidneys and made me suffer more intense. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Fisher's drug store, have given me great relief from these troubles and I can recommend them highly."

HOLDS RUGS IN PLACE.

Clamp Fastens to Floor and Keeps Covering Flat.

Most people prefer rugs to carpets as floor coverings, but an objection that has been raised to the former is that they will not lie flat, and on a polished surface they are liable to slip from under people and cause them to fall. Then, too, many a person has tripped over the loose end of a rug, with painful results. A clever man has devised a rug clamp which corrects these faults. The clamp is a strip of metal doubled, with teeth at the free ends turned inward. A band slides over the clamp and is held in place by a band and the clamping end the end of the teeth is tightened. At the other end are sharp spikes, which are to be driven into the floor to hold the device. The spikes are small, and the holes they make are scarcely noticeable. By using one of these clamps on all the edges of a rug, the latter is fastened down as securely as if it were tacked and does notrinkle up when walked on or when chairs or tables are moved about on it.

GOOD SAND FOR ROADS.

Value of Wests Product From California Oil Wells.

Two hundred tons of rich black oil sand from the Sunset wells at Visalia, Cal., will be used on some of the roads of Tulare county, in California, this summer. Superintendent Twaddle, chairman of the county governing board, has been experimenting and found it satisfactory. The sand comes from the wells mixed with the oil and is a fine granular sand that separates the sand sinks to the bottom and separates itself, the oil running off. Gradually the sand piles up around the derricks and at the mouth of the pipe and fills a large part of the sumps. There are piles forty feet deep on the Adeline, Maricopa road, and Oil and Gate City property, which have a elevation in excess of four or five years. The sand contains with this heavy oil is different from that found with the lighter oils, even that with the Kern river product.

Those who have tried it say it is superior for roads to any common sand that may be mixed with oil. It has a higher oil content and is a better artificial product. Before its adoption in Tulare county it was used quite a little on highways in the immediate vicinity of the oil fields, being given to whoever would load and haul it away. A wide use of this by-product by roadmakers will be a boom to the heavy oil producers of Sunoco by ridding them of a nuisance and transforming it into a source of revenue.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23, 1909

Politics is warming up some.

Everybody's wondering what the Republicans are going to do.

Nat Taul was the first man on this market with ripe peaches. They are fine.

Dave Henry says he is in the race for Representative on the Republican ticket.

An old-time Democratic Mass Convention makes the boys stand up and say something.

The Kansas wheat crop is estimated at 65,000,000 bushels. The yield per acre is from eight to twelve bushels.

Well, now confetti is a real jolly thing to handle. It puts new life into old bones and brings back that young feeling.

Say, have you noticed the label on your paper? Does it expire in June? If it does you had better renew if you don't want it stopped.

What is the matter with the Hon. D. C. Moorman for the Senate or the Legislature. If you can get the old man harnessed up he will make things hum.

There never was a more universal feeling for one man to make a race for a county office than there is for Vic Robertson. He surely has things going his way.

There are two other men that the Democrats will make no mistake in nominating—Charley Lightfoot for Sheriff, and V. G. Babage for County Attorney.

Ed Gregory showed the News a fine sample of Irish potatoes grown on Fisher's lot. The yield, he says, is very much better than he expected. If potatoes yield this year in proportion to the vines the crop will be immense.

That Tague natural gas light is a good one. Every street in this town ought to be lighted with them. They will not only give new light but new life to the old town. Wake up, gentlemen of the city council, and turn on the light.

The people are going to have their say in the nominations for the county offices. They are going to demand that good men, honorable men and men who are qualified to fill the offices, be nominated. And the party that puts up the cleanest men is going to get the votes.

A good Democrat from Custer in speaking of Vic Robertson to County Clerk said: "There is not a nicer, cleaner man in Breckinridge county, and everybody in our section is for him." In fact the News don't hear anything but what is favorable to his nomination.

Newspapers are town builders, town advertisers, fortune makers, news disseminators and sermon deliverers; a necessity, not a luxury. They must be given the proper support and be maintained. Without them your town would retrograde. Don't patronize them from a charitable standpoint—patronize them because they deliver the goods; that is, if they are the right kind.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or ringing in the ear, which is not unlike the sound of Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation is taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Cases can be cured by Dr. Cattell, who has nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

CHAPTER VI

WHEN John Douglas' uncle offered to endow his nephew for the ministry the boy was less enthusiastic than his mother. He did not remonstrate, however, for it had been the custom of generations for at least one son of each Douglas to preach the gospel of Calvinism, and his father's career as an amateur landscape gardener had not been his much capital.

Douglas' career had been recognized as an artist by the few who understood his talents, but there is small demand for the builder of picturesque scenes in little towns. The boy, however, had not yet lost his taste for the middle life, and at last he gave in. Every, leaving his son only the burden of his financial failure and an ardor to succeed at the profession in which his father had farred so badly. The hopeless, defeated look on the departed man's face had always haunted the boy, who was artist enough to feel his father's genius intuitively and passionately to resent the injustice of his fate.

Douglas' mother had suffered so much because of the impractical efforts of her husband that she disengaged the early tendon of the son toward drawing and mathematics and tried to divert his mind toward creative work.

Douglas' mind was too active to content itself wholly with the training of the mind and the love of drama and art. It was a keen humanitarian, so little by little he came to be interested in the heart stories and disappointments of many of the village unfortunates, some of whom were outside his congregation, and who needed only slight prompting, who needed more of hope and courage than dry talks on theology. Found in him an early friend and confidant, and these came to love and depend on him. But he was never popular with the crowd element of the church.

Mandy had with about being on the spot the first time that the strong's jaw squared itself at Deacon Strong. The deacon had called at the parsonage to demand that Douglas stop to the boy's place, and he had been received in a kindly, Sunday. Douglas had been unable to see the deacon's point of view. He declared that baseball was a healthy and harmless form of exercise that the air was meant to be breathed and that the boys who enjoyed the game of baseball were probably the ones who were kept indoors by work on other days. The close of the interview was unsatisfactory to both Douglas and the deacon.

"Dey kinder made me cold an' prickly all up an' down de back," Mandy said after what she had been taught to say. "Dey done de same as I done, don't knowin' them gittin' ran' parson." She tossed her head with a feeling of superiority. She knew the way. Make him forget himself with a laugh. Excuse his sympathy with some village underdog.

try not to disturb the pastor. John Douglas' mother always went with pastor and parson making notes of the plans for the church and parsonage which he would perfect later on. Alas, for Douglas' day dreams! It was not many weeks before he understood with a heavy heart that the deacons were not the only ones uninspired to share his faith in beauty as an aid to man's spiritual uplift.

"We think we've done pretty well by this church," said Deacon Strong, who was the business head, the political being, and the social director of the small town's affairs. "Just you work along with the preachers, young man, and we'll attend to the buyin' and buildin' operations."

Douglas' mind was too active to content itself wholly with the training of the mind and the love of drama and art. It was a keen humanitarian, so little by little he came to be interested in the heart stories and disappointments of many of the village unfortunates, some of whom were outside his congregation, and who needed only slight prompting, who needed more of hope and courage than dry talks on theology. CHAPTER VII

MANDY had secretly enjoyed the excitement caused by the little church's new life left in the parsonage, at first because of her infant love of mischief and later because Polly had become second in her heart only to the pastor. She went about her work, crooking softly, and the days of her's coming to the parson reading aloud in the pretty window overhead was company. She would often climb the village gossip and leave them laughing at a quaint comment about some haughty sister to her displeasure.

As spring came on Douglas carried Polly down to the sunlit garden beneath the window, and Mandy fluttered about arranging the cushions with a smile of some sort.

More days slipped by with Polly content to creep through the little soft leaves at the back of the church and to look for the deep, blue, sweet-scented violets. When she was able Douglas took her to him to visit some of the houses of the town. The boy's mother's instinct was quick to perceive many small needs in their lives that he had overlooked and to suggest simple, inexpensive joys that made their devoted friends.

Their evenings were divided between making plans for these entertainments and reading aloud from the Bible or books.

When Polly gained courage, Douglas sometimes persuaded her to read to him, and the little corrections that he made in these times soon became noticeable. He loved her more.

She was so eager, so starved for knowledge that she drank it as fast as he could give it. It was during their talks about grammar that Mandy generally fell asleep in her rocker, her unfinished sewing still in her lap.

"I jes' wan' to be on de groun' de fir' time dat Mars Douglas and dat are Deacon Strong clinches," she said to Hasty as they looked the doors and turned out the hall light. "Did you done dat, too?" she asked.

"He look laughin' so rough, but jes' you wait till he done set dat 're jaw o' his'n, and dar ain't nobody what's goin' ter unsit it."

"Mayde dat ain't goin' ter be no chancin' now," said Hasty for Mandy's assurance to her continued silence.

"What?" shrieked Mandy. "Wid dat 'ers smokin'! Widow Willoughby already a-teelin' de deacons how ter start de new parson a-goin' proper?"

"Now, why yous always a-pickin' on dat old widow?" asked Hasty, already smirking the explosion which his defense of the widow was cause to excite.

"If don' I've no woman what's allus braggin' in de clean floors," answered Mandy shortly. She turned out the last light and tiptoed upstairs.

"ENTREAT ME NOT TO LEAVE THEE," HE READ.

That kinder hurt him, too. I s'pose he never heard him say it. It was a good boy, but he just after this wrote the parson a tellin' him to never let you come back. He seemed to 't got an idea in his head that you was happier where you was. He wouldn't let me tell you 'bout his feelin' rocky, 'cause he thought it might mabe make you come back. She's diff'rent from us, she's allus a-sayin'. I never expected to have 'er."

Douglas stopped. Polly was waiting, her face white and drawn. He had not told her of Toby's letter because it had come a request to "say nothin' to the kid."

He felt that Polly was controlling him, but an effort until he should reach the end of Jim's letter, so he hurried on.

"The parson's promise didn't get to him none too quick," he read. "I thought to be what he was goin' to do. I thought he was goin' to come, an' not in a little room in a hotel after the show an' let one of the other fellers get the stuff out o' town, so I could stay with him up to the finish. It come round mornin'. There wasn't much to it—he just seemed tired an' worn out. I thought he was goin' to say he don't, he said, makin' the parson. 'She knows, she knows it,' he whispered, meanin' you, Polly, an' then he was on his way. He'd already give me what was saved up for you, an' I'm sendin' it along with this!" A money order for $250 had been freed from the envelope when Douglas opened it.

"I got everything ready afore I went on the next day, an' I went up an' saw the little spot on the hill where they was goin' to stow him. I looked around, an' there was a little bunch o' flowers on it now, an' there was. It was you what made me think o' that, Polly. I guess it seemed to me what you would 'a' done. You was always so daffy about dowers, you an' Jim."

"I guess this letter's too long for me to a-sayin' much about the show, but the 'hepa-death' girl got her last week. She wasn't strong enough for the job nohow. I done what I could for her outside the show, 'cause

I knowed how yea was alus a-feelin' 'bout her. I guess the 'hepa-death' husband is goin' to jump in his job soon, if he can find one. I guess he's goin' to be a Barker an' kick it off no more."

We got a good deal o' trouble among the animals too. None o' the snakes is sheddin' like they ought to, an' Jumbo's a-carryin' a sixteen foot bandage around that trunk o' his'n 'cause he got a bad case of the mumps last other night, an' the new giraffe's got the crap in that seven foot neck o' his'n. I guess you'll think I got the pif for fat this time, so I'll just get on to you now an' cut this short. I'll be writin' you agin when we hit Morgan."

"YOUR OLD MUUVVER JIM."

Douglas laid the letter gently on the ROAD DRAG SEASON.

Any Month If the Conditions Are Right For Its Use.

The road drag is like the manure spreader-in style many months in the year if the conditions are right for its use. Other machines are put in the shed to wait their season, but the road drag should always be ready to hitch to if we are to use it to the best advantage. The accepted time for the use of the drag is when the roads are drying up after the rains. It is surprising what an immense amount of good can be done the roads in an hour at such a time. Enough dirt is brought in to keep the road well rounded in to the wheel alignment run over and mud is puddled and plastered down so that the surface is quickly dried and compacted ready to shed the next shower a little better. Some people seem to have a wrong conception of the time to drag. I have seen one of our trustees out earning ($75 the township money after the roads had been dry a day or two. He seemed to think the mission of the drag was to fill up the ruts. At any rate, he would drive merrily along, leaving in some places hardly a trace of the original road.

Among the most satisfactory we ever realized from dragging the roads came from a job done in the mud just before the last freeze in the fall. How can you tell when to do it? Just guess at it and keep trying. If it thaws the next day there is no harm done. And when you hit a rut you will feel a pulse, beneficial as you watch the teams go gliding by on your neighbor's rough road. The spring is the time to use the road drag if you want to do some lasting good to the highway.

The dirt and soft mud, even when it is not a few inches deep, the road with the drag, cleaning out the ditches and rounding up the surface, will do more good than a gang of men with the grader in the fall. The best job I ever did with the drag was to round up the track on a bad clay hill just as the frost was going out. That hill was good all summer.—C. J. Kelsey in Homestead.

To Turn Up a Hem.

Every woman who does any sewing at home should have some kind of gauge for helping to turn up a hem. It is not an easy matter for any one, even if she has an accurate eye, to turn up a hem by gauging the distance from the edge with a ruler or some other device. If you have no gauge you can make an excellent substitute from a piece of stiff cardboard. Make a niche in the cardboard at the distance the skirt is to be from the floor. Rest the cardboard on the floor and measure the skirt to the floor. Turn up the skirt to the card board. Turn up the skirt to the card board to mark where the card board is niched. The pins should be placed quite close together, and when they have been placed all around the skirt it may be turned up. This is an easy and quick way of turning a skirt, especially if you have a card board which has been used in placing the pins the skirt will be perfectly even all the way around. Be careful to hold the card board upright and not to slant it in some places or the length of the skirt will be changed.

Often The Kidneys Are

Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering. If kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results will follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they are most important and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are sick or out of order, you can understand how easily your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to be failing.

If you are sick of kidney trouble, begin to take the kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been known in thousands of the most distressing cases.

If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, however, in taking the name Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

MOLASSES FOR ROADS.

Of Great Value In Improving Highways When Mixed With Lime.

Molasses mixed with lime and oil is being experimented with by the United States department of agriculture in roadmaking, and this combination promises to prove of great value in bettering the highways in certain sections of the country.

Lowell, Massachusetts, of the United States department of agriculture made several experiments on the streets of Newton, Mass. One that attracted notice on the part of authorities on street construction and no little ridicule was what was dubbed the "molasses road."

The street commissioner selected a difficult, with a steep grade and a sharp curve—just the spot for quick destruction of a road by the automobile and heavy traffic and an equally advantageous place for observation of the effect of the strong wind.

A preparation of molasses, lime and oil was mixed with a small amount of sand and gravel and applied to the road. The liquid in the mixture permeated to the substratum of rock and made a surface of from two to three inches of heavy binding material. That section has passed the tests of winter, and to-day the surface is so hard that considerable force is required to dent it with a pickax.

IT'S ENGLISH, YOU KNOW!

Worn by a Londoner.

A novel solution of the matinee hat problem has been introduced by Miss Jean Alwin of London.

She has designed a hat consisting of two parts, the crown and the brim, which are made quite separate. The crown is a small, flat cap, the brim being a minimum of obstruction to the view of any one sitting behind it, while the detachable brim forms an enormous exaggerated "Merry Widow" affair.

When the hat is worn at a matinee and causes the usual protest from behind, the wearer, with a smile, simply turns the hat around and says, "I'm wearing a Londoner."

THE LATEST GAME.

Suspense, and It Promises to Become Very Popular.

Suspense is the name of a new game which promises to be a great success.

A ten-year-old girl introduced it recently at a party, and it scored an immediate hit. It was played something like this:

One of the guests entered the parlor with a manuscript, which he asked the company to listen to while he read.

"James Harrigan, coal baron, frowns when he looks up from his papers to find Albert Percival Durval before him," the guest read.

"I tell you, young man, it's no use, and I don't want to discuss it. Before I'd let you marry Phyllis."

"Don't say anything you might regret later," the young man replied, facing the older man with a steady glare, because "I'm going to marry her anyway in spite of you."

"For a minute Harrigan lost his temper. 'Get out of my office, you impudent puppy, or I'll throw you out!'

"The answer Alvert only stopped over to the door, slammed it shut, drove the key home and locked it. Then he turned to face the angry millionaire.

"In place of the imperturbable man of business he saw the Harrigan who used to be playboy Harrigan, who had his shirttail out, a drawstring and a gleaming six shooter. 'A move and you're a dead man!' he started to say.

"But Durval as he turned from the door had seized a heavy bronze ink well from the secretary's desk. Quick as a flash he threw it. The heavy missile struck the revolver just as Harrigan brought it to cover his open pocket.

"With muttered curses the two men came together. Weaponless, brute strength against brute strength, they struggled and writhed. Slowly, mercifully, Harrigan's fingers tightened around the man's throat. He jammed his head between a corner of the desk and the floor."

"Now, what happened next?" the guest who was reading the story demanded of the listeners. "Every one's got paper and pencil. Quick! You've got five minutes to write the next paragraph."

According to their surmise, the guests got busy. Some had serious answers, others laughable ones.

The prize for the best answer was a copy of one of the "six best thrillers."

The sequel that won it like this:

"Just as James Harrigan was crushing the last breath from Durval's body, the door burst open and a woman was held. The younger man's coat had come open. On the waistcoat gleamed two large diamonds. The woman's eyes were wide with surprise.

"'Why, you're a fraternity brother of mine,' he said. 'I beg your pardon.'

"'Get up and let me dust you off.'

GOVERNOR BANDALA OF TABASCO

Finds Peruna To Be An Efficacious Remedy.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes from San Juan Bautista concerning Peruna.

ABRAHAM BANDALA.

Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes as follows:
San Juan Bautista, 6th Sept. 1906.
The Peruna Drug Mfg Co.
Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used the preparation Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious cure worthy of being recommended.
You can make such use of this letter as you consider most adapted to your interests, and I beg to remain, Yours very truly, Abraham Bandala.

Other distinguished persons from Mexico have given similar statements concerning the merit of Peruna. Prominent among these is the world-wide reputation of Dr. Augustin Rivera.

Silao, Guanajuato, Mexico.

The Peruna Drug Co.
Gentlemen:—Because of the magnificent results which I have obtained from the use of your praiseworthy remedy, "Peruna," in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh, I take pleasure in writing to you a testimonial recommending it as the best medicine discovered for such cases.

I congratulate you for such a splendid preparation, and trust to you my services as far as I can recommend it to my numerous customers.

Accept my most sincere testimonial, and use it as you think best for those who suffer from the disease which I have mentioned, and I am glad to sign myself as your friend. Respectfully,
John H. Bush, Hardinsburg, Ky.

As seen as an impartial doctor becomes acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, he finds catarrh not to be formidable.

ST. JOHN'S DAY CELEBRATION.

Masons Celebrate Their Patron

Saint Day at Hardinsburg.

Hardinsburg, Ky. (Special)—Ideal weather prevailed during the whole of the time set apart by the local Masons for the celebration of their Patron Saint Day, and a large number of the leading citizens of our town and county, as well as visitors from other counties and States, gathered on Saturday afternoon last and attended the reception tendered to the distinguished craftsmen who were announced to speak on this occasion.

Dr. and Mrs. Mather, assisted by an efficient committee of ladies, did everything in their power to make the guests welcome during their visit to the personage, and were nobly sustained in their efforts by a large reception committee headed by Gen. David K. Murch-

There were two disappointments as far as the program was concerned, one being the sad fact of the passing of former Governor T. T. Crittenden, of Missouri, to whom a prominent part had been assigned, and whose coming to Hardinsburg for this occasion had been looked forward to by a large number of friends, the other was the inability of Postmaster Robt. E. Woods, of Louisville, who wrote at the last minute saying that a temporary attack of illness precluded his making the journey.

Rev. Dr. C. Woods, of St. Louis, and Dr. R. C. Blackmer, of the same city, were on hand however, as also Hon. Logan C. Murray, of Louisville, and these gentlemen rendered excellent service in the speaking line, as also did Hon. John P. Haskell, Jr., who made an address of welcome.

The address of Dr. Woods will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present. Clear, forcible and eloquent, his words won him to his audience, and we heard many expressions of approval as he warmed to his subject. In fact it is doubtful if ever a better address on Freemasonry has been heard in this country.

Dr. Blackmer is an orator of the first water, and delighted his audience with two excellent speeches.

Mr. Will Murray spoke with evident emotion to his old neighbors and friends, told of the longing desire of his half brother, Gov. Crittenden, to be with them that day. He told of the Governor's last letter to him, which spoke of the old home associations of Breckinridge county, and thanked them for the many expressions of sympathy which had reached the family in their sad hour.

After the speaking, the ladies served refreshments, and a picture of the gathering was taken, and then everybody dispersed prior to the special meeting of Breckinridge Lodge which was held on Saturday night in the local Masonic Hall. At this meeting the degree of Master Mason was conferring on County Superintendent of Schools, J. H. Pyle, and Dr. Woods as Past Grand Master and Grand Lodge of Free Masons of Missouri presided, being ably assisted by Dr. R. C. Blackmer, Dr. Mather and others. About a hundred Masons were present at the meeting, and the work was done in a very impressive and efficient manner.

On Sunday morning a large and representative audience assembled in the Southern Methodist church to hear Dr. Woods, who preached an impressive sermon from the text, "For it became him, for whom are things and by whom are all things, to make the captain of their salvation perfect through suffering." A large choir under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Reid, rendered the musical portion, and with great effect, and Dr. Blackmer, at the request of Dr. Woods, recited, "Would the Spirit of Man be Proud?"

Dr. Woods also preached to a large audience on Sunday night in the same church. The expressions heard on all sides voice a unanimous sentiment that this celebration had been one of the most brilliant events held here for a long time, and much good undoubtedly followed such a worthy occasion.

McDaniels Trims Hardinsburg.

McDaniels, Ky., June 21.—In a game of base ball, Sunday, Sam Fenn, McDaniel's defeated Hardinsburg with a score of 11 to 9 for the visitors, who had batted hard. Nine runs were made off his delivery in the second inning. The next game on the local diamond will be Lettichfield July 4.
